ABOUT

I don't have a typical developer's background or formal IT education, but my interest in web development dates back in 2004 when I typed very first line of HTML code and fell in love immediately. After a few years of learning, I became very skilled in HTML/CSS, as well in web design. Also, I was always fascinated with back-end development, so I learned a lot of PHP, MySQL, and Ajax, since I needed it for many projects.

Nowadays, I'm mainly working with HTML, CSS, JavaScript, trying to explore all of HTML5 and CSS3 features, as well as incorporating modern JS while making sites optimized for mobile devices. I like to play around with micro animations and transitions and make a beautiful interface.

I have huge experience with UI/UX and excellent understanding of grid systems, as well as cross-browser and cross-devices optimization. Last few years I'm totally into SASS and experimenting with methodologies like BEM, SMACSS, OOCSS, etc. I'm very interested in design trends, color psychology, and typography and telling designers that they got it wrong.

Aside front-end (which is obviously my biggest passion) I like to dig to the back-end, so writing PHP, or designing a database is not a strange thing to me. In fact, I worked on hundreds of projects where I wrote PHP. Nowadays I'm pretty interested in writing API for JavaScript (preferably Vue JS) applications.

I'm very passionate, dedicated and focused on work because I believe that working hard is a very honorable thing and one of the greatest achievement in man's life. I'm a reliable, motivated and hard-working man whose main goal is to always deliver the best. Saying that my motivation is not money itself but the quality of the work. I have huge respect to employer and clients and expect the same from them.

Besides web development, I'm very interested in music (I'm playing in a metal band), traveling, writing, and reading, physics, astronomy, psychology, anthropology, and philosophy.
